By Philip Thomas

Duane is usually the first one to arrive at camera club and the last to leave and has progressed from being Class B to a Class A photographer.

During the Washington Park Camera Club’s 2012 Year-End Banquet, Duane Savage was named the club’s “Person of the Year” for 2012.

Duane is always a person who will give a helping hand to whoever asks of his photographic skills. He is active in teaching a class at Trinity United Church of Christ and is active in a community gardening project. He has worked hard to develop the Washington Park Camera Club’s Digitally Project Images (DPI) component.

Outdoor Model Shoot

On June 5, 2012 members of the Washington Park camera club and students from the University of Chicago, staged an outdoor camera shoot on the UC campus. The focus was to use natural lighting to capture the mood and give the members the experience of photographing models with limited use of flash photography. The students volunteered to be models for the attending Camera Club members.

We would like to wish of our student-friends the very best in their studies.
